Re: S-1 Rec. versus SP 12.5 (TL-C)

Dear Mr. Hartman:

As a clarification of the statements made by Douglas Asphalt Company to the Nassau County Commissioners, Personnel and Engineer present at the prior meeting, as they relate to the S-1 Rec. Marshall Mix comparison to the SP 12.5 (TL-C) Superpave Mix, I would like to present the following mix comparison:

AGGREGATE GRADATION PARALLELS:

The mix design characteristics of the S-1 Rec. and the SP 12.5 (TL-C) are almost identical. By FDOT Specification the use of the SP 12.5 mix is meant to parallel the use of the S-1 Rec. mix. To take this parallel even further, the use of granite aggregates in Douglas Asphalt Company's S-1 mix design has further enhanced the mix characteristics to the extent that only a nominal adjustment to the aggregate percentages is made to manufacture the SP 12.5 (TL-C) mix.

The mix characteristics are identical with the major difference being just the change in mix nomenclature (S-1 to SP 12.5) to coincide with the Superpave Mix identification.

To conclude, the aggregate gradation of the S-1 Rec. can be accepted equally as a SP 12.5 (TL-C) if indeed it is tested from the same batch of mix.

MIX USAGE PARALLELS:

Equally parallel is the application of the S-1 Rec. and the SP 12.5 (TL-C). No additional costs for application or compaction are required when changing from a S-1 Rec. to a SP 12.5 (TL-C). The crew and equipment costs considered for use for the C.R. 121 project will be the same whether the S-1 Rec. or the SP 12.5 (TL-C) is designated for use.

ASPHALT CEMENT & AGGREGATE COST INCREASES:

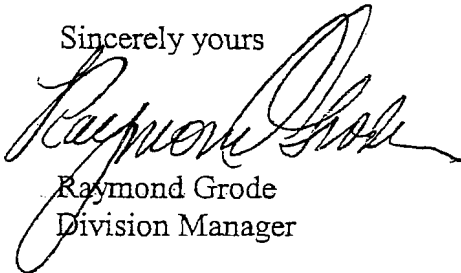

In compiling costs for the SP 12.5 (TL-C) mix to be considered for the C.R. 121 use it should be understood that only the asphalt cement and aggregate increases (for both S-1 & SP 12.5 mixes) caused by recent price increases will be assessed.

The current Unit Rate for the SP 12.5 (TL-C) (or S-1 Rec.) required for the mix placement as a leveling course or a surface course is.....$43.63 per ton. This Unit Rate shows a $5.83 per ton increase when compared to the parallel Bid Unit Rate presented in the Year 2003 for the + 2,400 ton increment located in the Hilliard District.

Please review these details as they are applied to the proposed C.R. 121 Project. Feel free to contact us if any added information is required to assist in your project preparation.

P.S.: The widening unit rate, tack coat application unit rate and striping pricing will be determined after plans have been presented.

MEMORANDUM

To: Michael Mahaney, County Administrator

From: José R. Deliz, Director of Engineering Services JRD

Cc: Mike Mullin, County Attorney
Butch Hartman, Road & Bridge Superintendent

Date: January 24, 2005

Subject: Asphalt Contract Addendum

The Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP) established by Congress in 1987 was tasked with determining why some pavements perform better than others. A result of this research was a new specification for asphaltic concrete called Superpave (SUperior PERforming PAVements). Superpave basically is made of the same materials as the Marshall mixes (current standard) but establishes performance-based standards and places a greater emphasis on quality control. In a nutshell, the new superpave is the same old stuff made better.

Last year, after extensive studies around the state, the FDOT embraced the Superpave standard exclusively, which means that for roadway work in the FDOT Right-Of-Ways the "old" Marshall mix specifications (S-I, S-III, etc.) will not longer be acceptable. In Nassau County we are also proposing to change our ordinance requirements as part of the LDRs to specify Superpave as the only permissible paving material. This will ensure that the material used in Nassau County developments and projects will be certified by FDOT.

Given that our current contract with Douglas Asphalt Company does not include Superpave, I asked Mr. Butch Hartman to request a quote for this material. He recently received the attached letter from Douglas indicating that the cost per ton of Superpave vs. the equivalent Marshall mix is $5.83 higher. This is commensurate with the price increase reported by other contractors in the area.

I recommend that an addendum to the asphalt supply contract be issued to extend the scope of provided services to cover Superpave as well as Marshall mixes. The contract should be revised as soon as possible since the CR121 widening/resurfacing will probably be done in-house with Superpave.
